

Take off! - Women in Academic Leadership

English-speaking training program for GESS, SFB 884

and GRK 1953 female doctoral students

- Call for applications by 27 June 2016 -

We are pleased to announce the English-speaking training program for young female researchers, Take off! - Women in Academic Leadership. It is designed to advance key competences necessary for a successful career in academia.

The Department of Gender Equality and Social Diversity, and the Vice President for Research, Equal Opportunity and Young Researchers, Prof. Rosemary Tracy, are inviting applications from GESS, SFB 884 and GRK 1953 female researchers for 15 places available in the 2016/17 academic year. The program consists of the following modules and individual sessions:

- Introductory session on team building
- Module 1: Time and Self-management
- Module 2: Career planning / Planning the postdoc phase
- Module 3: CV Check
- Module 4: Presentation Skills
- Module 5: Job Interview Training
- Module 6: Professional Communication Skills for Women in Academia
- Informal Evening Session with an Accomplished Researcher
- Closing Session: Presentation of Certificates

Your application should contain the following documents:

- Letter of Motivation (with special consideration of academic achievements and professional goals)
- Curriculum Vitae
- Transcript of Records (only for Members of the GESS)

Please submit your application in English in a single PDF-file by 27 June 2016 at the latest to:

Department of Gender Equality and Social Diversity
Subject: Training Program Take off! – Women in Academic Leadership
c/o Jürgen Kaufmann, M.A. genderconsulting@uni-mannheim.de

The program is free of charge. However, each participant is required to pay €50 to cover catering costs.

For more information on the program, please visit <http://sgsv.uni-mannheim.de/Karriere/takeoff/>

If you have any questions, please contact Jürgen Kaufmann.